Report:

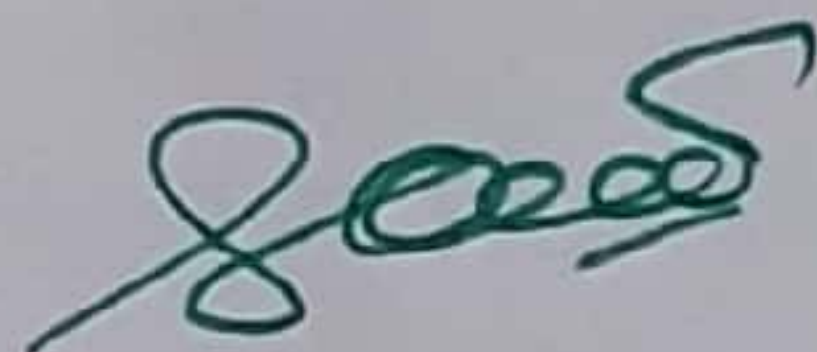

A health camp programme was organized on 24rd September 2025 at a primary health center, Kyathsandra, focusing on mental health screening among antenatal women as part of the Swasth Nari Shashakt Parivaar Abhiyan. The initiative was conducted with the objective of promoting early detection and management of mental health concerns during pregnancy. The camp included individual face to face interviews and counselling sessions tailored to the needs of expectant mothers. The initiative garnered positive response, providing a platform for early identification of psychological concerns, sensitization of expectant mothers and families and promotion of supportive care. The program not only enhanced awareness but also emphasized the importance of integrating mental well-being into routine antenatal care, thereby contributing to healthier mothers and stronger families.
